Accounting is a professional career with employment opportunities in public, corporate, not-for-profit, or governmental areas.

Professionals with an accounting degree can work in almost any industry imaginable. Not only is the field of accounting experiencing significant growth, but regulation changes and technology advancements ensure there is no shortage of opportunities and challenges.

Accounting students gain knowledge of accounting principles, tax law, financial and managerial accounting, cost management, auditing, accounting information systems and advanced applications of technology such as data analysis and visualization programs.

Graduates from the Department of Accounting at the UW-Whitewater College of Business and Economics demonstrate tremendous attention to detail and advanced problem-solving capabilities.

In fact, only 2% of the world's business schools have earned AACSB accounting accreditation in addition to AACSB business accreditation. This means that students at the College of Business and Economics receive the high quality, rigorous programs they deserve as well as the best value for their tuition investment.

- Bachelors of Business Administration
- Masters of Business Administration
- Doctorate of Business Administration
- Graduate Certificates

YOUR FUTURE IS OUR BUSINESS.

Accounting is the Language of Business

The Bachelor of Administration in Accounting prepares students for careers in various parts of the accounting profession.

The BBA in Accounting plus a second business major, or the Master of Business Administration, fulfills the 150-credit requirement to sit for the Uniform CPA Examination.

The MBA with accounting emphasis is ideal for individuals that are working or interested in accounting, but desire a breadth degree.

The College of Business and Economics also offers a variety of co-curricular activities to enhance student development and learning outcomes, including award-winning student organizations and applied learning experiences. These efforts, as well as the college's outstanding reputation for its accounting program, have resulted in a 100 percent placement rate for accounting majors within six months of graduation.
