Note: Participation in study away refers to the population of degree-seeking undergraduate students who participated in direct enrollment, exchange, partnership or other study abroad programs (including those sponsored by UW-Whitewater, other UW System institutions, other US-based colleges and universities or international exchange organizations), as well as international internships, service learning programs, teaching abroad programs, and UW-Whitewater Travel Study programs. The duration of study away experiences varies significantly, and may span more than one academic year. Students may participate in more than one study away program in a single academic year; as a result, the total number of participants may vary depending on the categories in which they are counted. The population of students participating in study away programs is provided by the UW-W Office of Global Experiences.

 Due to the global pandemic, students did not participate in study away programs in the 2020-2021 academic year – as a result, data for this academic year are not included in these reports. **
