

Places we have been

Interplay of Three Forces

Family
Developmental Transition

Individual Developmental Transition

Institutional Transition

There is No Magic Age

 Developmental changes accumulate gradually over time

Functional capacities build gradually over time

There is no magic age

- Families are the individuals who continue to be involved with youth after they leave school and child serving systems
- Need for Adult Allies

Institutional Transitions

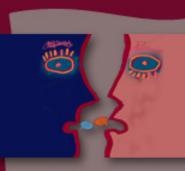

- Mediated by bureaucratic and legal, rather than cultural or natural, guidelines.
- Requirements to access services, pay sources, philosophy and approach to services differs.

MAKE IT STOP!!!!

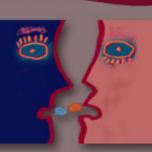

Game Change

Where have we been

Service Challenges

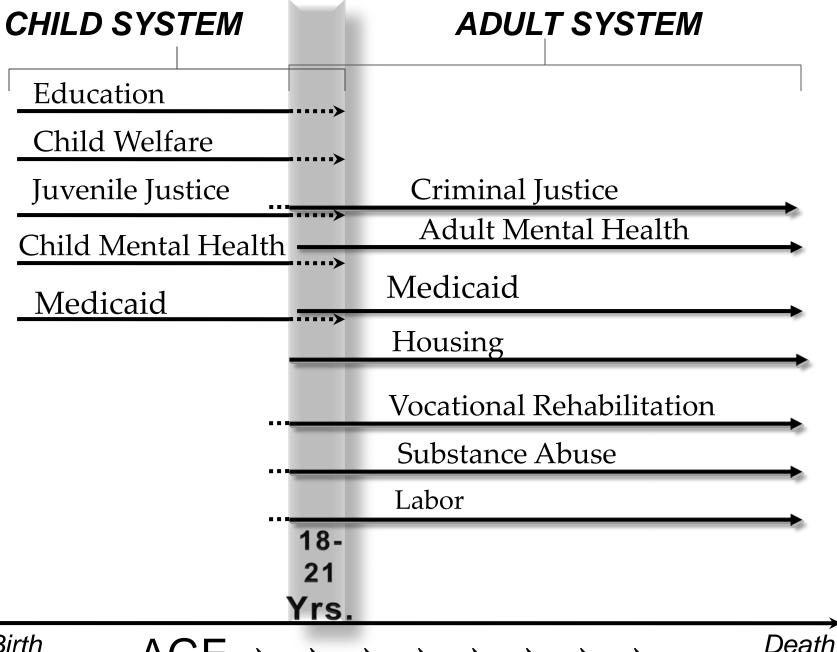

Typical Services result in poor young adult outcomes

Youth with SED Struggle as Adults

Poor Outcomes:

- Employment
- Education
- Living Situations
- Pregnancy Planning
- Justice Systems
- Substance Abuse

Birth

Game Change

Where do we need to go?

What Works

- Programs that establish trust and safety
- Programing that offers skill building and empowerment opportunities
- Connecting with others in similar situations and experiences
- Programs that are not Dx focused but support based.

What Works

- Shift to a young adult driven approach
- Engage young adults as true partners in the work
- Provide them leadership skill and opportunities to apply them
- Build connections to peers and adult allies

Where is Your Community?

Engagement is different

Enrollment is different

Respect and Understand Youth Culture

Young Adults want a Job / Place to live

Replication Issues

- Trauma Informed Care
- Work from a Position of Hope
- Flexibility is Necessary
- Community Base and Easy Access
- Youth Competent Organizations and Workforce

Ch...Ch...CHANGES... Take Home Strategies

It's About Changing Lives

